Darrell Robinson was born deaf in 1965. Doctors told his parents that he would never be able to hear or speak. But Darrell's parents refused to give up on him. They enrolled him in a school for the deaf, where he learned to communicate using sign language.

Darrell loved to run. He started running track in high school, and quickly became one of the best runners on his team. He went on to compete in college, and eventually made the U.S. Olympic team.

Darrell's running career was not without its challenges. He faced discrimination from some people who did not believe that a deaf person could be a successful athlete. But Darrell never let the naysayers stop him from pursuing his dreams.

In 1996, Darrell won a silver medal in the 400-meter hurdles at the Olympic Games in Atlanta. He was the first deaf athlete to win an Olympic medal in track and field.

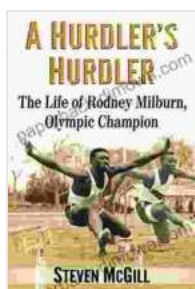

Darrell's story is an inspiration to anyone who has ever faced adversity. He shows us that anything is possible if we have the courage to never give up on our dreams.

Hurdler Hurdler is a must-read for anyone who loves sports, or for anyone who is looking for inspiration.
