The Vienna Circle was a group of philosophers, scientists, and mathematicians who met regularly in Vienna during the 1920s and 1930s. The Circle was founded by Moritz Schlick, and its members included Rudolf Carnap, Otto Neurath, and Kurt Gödel. The Circle's goal was to develop a new, scientific philosophy that would be based on the principles of logical positivism.

The Mathematical Colloquium Vienna was a group of mathematicians who met regularly in Vienna during the same period. The Colloquium was founded by Hans Hahn, and its members included Karl Menger, Kurt Gödel, and John von Neumann. The Colloquium's goal was to promote the development of mathematics in Vienna.

Both the Vienna Circle and the Mathematical Colloquium Vienna played a significant role in the intellectual life of Vienna during the early 20th century. The two groups were closely associated, and many of their members were involved in both groups.
